For years, diners in Dubai have enjoyed access to plenty of French, Italian and British restaurants – and there is still no shortage today. For the best of the best, head straight to La Cantine Du Faubourg for Parisian vibes and eats, visit Il Borro Tuscan Bistro for incredible Italian food and a gorgeous setting and, for a sampling of great British cuisine or afternoon tea, go to Rhodes W1 by Gary Rhodes, who settled in Dubai years ago. The venue has the look of an English garden, while the menu is woven with elements of the Mediterranean.

More and more, other European countries now have culinary representation across Dubai too. There are now a few hot Spanish spots (Salero is recommended), a Portuguese eatery, Tasca by José Avillez, and a host of new Greek tavernas (Gaia and Mythos are particularly good).
